CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF NIGERIA

NATIONAL ANTHEM

THE OLD

Nigeria, we hail thee.

Our own dear native land,

Though tribe and tongue may differ

In brotherhood we stand

Nigerians all, and proud to serve

Our sovereign motherland.

Our flag shall be a symbol

That truth and justice reign

In peace or battle honour'd

And this we count as gain

To hand on to our children

A banner without stain.

O God of all creation

Grant this our one request

Help us to build a nation

Where no man is oppressed

And so with peace and plenty

Nigeria may be blessed.

CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF NIGERIA

1979: MAKE IT A YEAR OF HOPE, LOVE

Full text of the New Year message broadcast to the nation on Monday morning by the Head of State, Lt-General Olusegun Obasanjo during which he reviewed the events of the year and made a call to make this year, a year of hope, love and consolidation at home and abroad.

Fellow Nigerians,

The guideline which I gave at the beginning of the year that has just ended for our social and economic structures has been strictly followed. We have taken measures from which we could not shy away without economic disaster.

Perhaps it is used once again to remind ourselves that the measures were necessitated by certain considerations, including our desire to liberate and strengthen our economy, conserve foreign exchange for productive ventures and more importantly make for economic self-reliance. It was also designed as an acid test of the seriousness, ingenuity, creativeness and relevance of our universities, polytechnics and research establishments. The great industrial nations of the world did not become great by folding their arms and wishing to be great.

They did not achieve greatness through romanticising their potentials for greatness, nor did they become great by serving as a convenient dumping grounds for all sorts of goods from all sorts of countries with their nationals being satisfied as commissioned agents. At one time or the other, they had to take the crucial decision to make, by themselves, most of what they need and in the process, suffering temporary inconveniences of apparent scarcity and even low quality in order to develop their own products.

They eventually succeeded not only to produce enough for themselves but also for export.

With practice they became perfect. With challenge and sacrifice they became stronger. As a nation we have started and there is no going back.

We have two most important ingredients to production and greatness — land and people. The haphazard use, control, coordination and harmonisation of these two resources in the past had led to waste, decline in agricultural production and heavy dependence on imported food. The tide has been stemmed through the measures we have taken including Operation Feed the Nation and the Land Use Decree. Although the full effect of these measures will take time to be realised, scarcity of food items has already been minimised.

I call on our farmers not to relent their efforts on the farm and I assure them of reasonable returns on their investment. Let us all, no matter our calling or profession, keep the spirit of operation feed the nation alive.

After a lean time of over six months, the effect of the measures has started to be apparent in stable consumer prices and reduction of prices of some food items, greater investment in small and medium scale industries, increased agricultural production and general reduction of wasteful spending and ostentatious living. In the New Year, measures will be taken to consolidate our gains, stimulate further production in the economy and encourage self-reliance.

Local industries will be protected against dumping from abroad and against uncertainties that may jeopardise their healthy development. I call on our manufacturers to pay special attention to improvement of quality and standards.

CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF NIGERIA

As a nation we are still far from the type of society we are striving to build, but foundations have been laid on which we can continue to build to achieve our desired objectives of a disciplined, fair, just, humane and self-reliant African society. There must be equity in a society to strengthen the stability and security of that society.

Therefore, sacrifice will continue to be demanded of each and every one of us according to his ability in the overall interest of the nation. For a nation like ours any hope or promise of greatness without hard work and sacrifice is a delusion.

In tackling the problems of antisocial behaviours and criminal elements within the society, the police and other law enforcement agents cannot be fully effective without the support and assistance of the general public and the judiciary. The police are making efforts to improve their efficiency and response to public calls and demands. But let everyone of us make a resolution this year to be of assistance to the law enforcement agents. The security and safety of any society is the responsibility of all the members of that society. Government will not relent efforts at punishing and reforming criminals and those with antisocial tendencies in our midst.

Let me once again undermine the role of the public servants in the context of Nigeria. It is true that no country can develop without an efficient, dynamic, dedicated and loyal public service. Over the last two decades the Nigerian Public Service had witnessed significant transformation from the colonial role of maintaining law and order to a development-oriented service. It is not only the citizens of this country that look up to its public service for positive contributions and leadership, other black and African countries in their search for identity and economic and political recovery do the same. I am happy to note that so far, in spite of some falterings, the Public Service in general has contributed in no small way to the achievements already made in the development of the nation's economy.

Having recorded my appreciation for the result so far achieved, not always under propitious circumstances, I consider it equally proper to mention that on several occasions, I have had to advise or give admonition to public servants to live up to their leadership role and responsibility in the society. While many officers especially at the high level have shown loyalty, the attitude to work of yet many leaves room for concern. I do not believe that any Nigerian is born an indolent; a perpetual late comer, a malingerer, a grumbler at work or a time-watcher. Neither is he born to thrive in dirt and dirty surroundings.

The colonial mentality that public or corporate work deserves no commitment, dedication nor sweat must be removed. Let all workers in public and private sectors of our economy, through constant supervision and example, instill new attitude and new value in their subordinates. An official who goes late to work regularly for whatever reason has lost moral strength and ability to discipline a subordinate for lateness. Let us take pride in our jobs and develop a new attitude to our work.

The new presidential system of government will present yet another great challenge to the public service and will exert new pressures of its own. Judging from past performance, I have no doubt that the public service as a whole will be up to the task.

The African man by tradition holds human life and human beings sacred. Existence of corpses on our roads unattended to for hours and days dehumanises. Let our drivers show more consideration for other road users and let the police and local government officials be more alive to their responsibilities in this respect.

We have become more interested in acquiring new equipment, machinery and structures rather than maintaining the existing ones. This wasteful attitude also stems from our mentality of extravagance and lack of care for public or corporate property. As a developing nation we need to husband and harness our resources judiciously and protect every investment in structures, equipment and machinery. We cannot afford an economy geared to waste and based on 'use and discard'. Maintenance must be given a special attention in the public service and the private sector. We must endeavour to achieve greater and better results at the minimum cost of manpower, money and material resources.

The year that has just ended has been the beginning of party political activities after twelve years of dormancy. Human beings require competition for healthy growth and development and I believe that political activities in an atmosphere devoid of bitterness and rancour offer such competition for wholesome development of our nation.

For their personal interest and because of their failure or other factors of their own making, some Nigerians are now wishing that the Federal Military Government should bar other Nigerians from politics for reasons other than established malpractices of the past. The Federal Military Government will not allow itself or the armed forces to be used as a tool for personal, sectional or group interests.

As we are close to election days, it must be realised that in the final analysis, the citizens of Nigeria will be the creators of their own government.

If the citizens make conscious choice of good leaders at every level, they will have discharged their responsibilities properly. But if the citizens do not, they will have cheated themselves and the future of the nation and the lives of all of us may be adversely affected. Any government as a human institution will have its shortcomings. But one major cause of failure of civilian administration in this country was that our leaders then concentrated on the part and ignored the whole, hence regionalism, tribalism, sectionalism and ethnicity became the order of the day. Let us now correct that which failed us. Let our political aspirants look upon the whole, not the part; let us remember the past and look forward hopefully to the future; let us march forward in solidarity and unity of purpose and together build a nation ever more united, greater and stronger.

Our first preoccupation as a nation must be national unity and stability and more-so in the immediate post-military era. The new Year is going to be landmark in the political evolution of this country. We must all strive to make great success of the epochmaking and historic events. As soon as the Federal Electoral Commission formally informs the Federal Military Government of all preparations and readiness to undertake all the five elections, the Supreme Military Council will meet to decide on the time frame during which all the elections must be completed while leaving FEDECO to fix the date of each election.

Our foreign policy of focusing on African without ignoring our interests in other parts of the world has yielded dividends in the past year. In concert with our other African brothers, we have played our modest part in restoring peace between some warring neighbours in Africa and in encouraging others who might have gone to war to adopt reconciliatory postures in the spirit of amity and African brotherhood.

We are grateful to God for another relatively peaceful year at home, but we cannot rest on our laurels until our brothers in every part of our continent enjoy the same peace which is the basis for progress and development. In the same way, we have not relented our efforts towards hastening the pace of liberation of southern Africa.

CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF NIGERIA

While we shall continue to give our full support and cooperation to any fresh initiatives which seek to achieve our purpose in southern Africa without further bloodshed, we shall also continue to strengthen the hands of the liberation movements and the frontline states in every way we can.

Let us, therefore, resolve to make this year, a year of hope, love, and consolidation at home and abroad. Let us cultivate new attitude to work, to our environment and to our neighbours and fellow Nigerians. Let us cultivate clean habits and practise clean politics. I wish you all happiness and success in the new year.

Thank you.

CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF NIGERIA

LET THERE BE UNITY AND STABILITY

Text of address delivered by Brigadier Shehu Yar'Adua, Chief of Staff, Supreme Headquarters on behalf of Lt-General Olusegun Obasanjo, the Head of State, to registered political parties in Lagos on Thursday, December 28, 1978.

In preparation for the lifting of the ban on party political activities, I addressed various groups of our community leaders in mid-September of this year. As political parties were then not formed, I could not address the politicians as a distinct group. Since then, a number of developments have taken place in this regard. Now that the various political parties which those of you gathered here today represent have been formed and duly registered with the Federal Electoral Commission, I thought it timely to invite you to the discussion which will shortly ensue.

You will recall that in my address to previous groups, I articulated what we believed to be the general consensus as to the mistakes of the past political era and the apprehensions of our citizenry regarding the future. On this occasion, I do not consider it necessary for me to go over the ground again.

Most of you here have been much more intimately involved in the political process of the anti-colonial struggle and the immediate post-independence era, and there is little that those of us of succeeding generations can tell you of that period of our national life.

However, a lot has happened in the intervening years and it would not be wise for us to reject, out of hand, the stock of knowledge and experience we have acquired during this and previous Administrations. We must all learn and benefit from this knowledge and experience so that we can create for our fellow citizens a stable and peaceful political atmosphere in which they can live happily and in prosperity.

Some of you here today will shortly be entrusted with the enormous responsibility of shaping the destiny of our great country. But the essence of the system which we seek to introduce is that whether in government or not, all of you here will, one way or the other, have an influence on vital decisions affecting every facet of our lives. I am confident that during the coming elections, Nigerians will freely and conscientiously elect those among you who will discharge these responsibilities. Any government, being a human institution, will have its shortcomings. But the degree of failure of a government to meet all the desires of the citizenry will depend on the quality of the political leadership, their values and priorities.

It would be true to say that the Nigerian Electorate and the general populace of today are in a great many ways more sophisticated, more articulate, and more conscious of their political rights and obligations than were those of the era of the first Republic. They are now much more nationalistic and less tolerant of incompetence, sectionalism, and lack of accountability and probity on the part of their leaders. On the whole, I believe that these changes are for the better and they augur well for our future.

Now, we all know that many things went amiss with our first attempt at popular democracy. One of the major causes of the failure of past civilian administration was that our political leaders almost exclusively concentrated on the part and ignored the whole. I have confidence that those of you who aspire to future political leadership of this country will correct that which failed us before and will resolve to look upon the whole and not only the part.

CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF NIGERIA

You should remember the past, reflect on what went wrong, learn from our mistakes, and look hopefully to the future. Our aspirants to political leadership must pull all the citizens together and marching forward in solidarity, build the whole ever more united, greater and stronger. Our first pre-occupation as a nation must be Unity and Stability, and this more so in the immediate post-military era. For, we must survive before we can succeed. We recognise that it is normal for political parties to so fashion their party manifestoes and campaign programmes as to have broad electoral appeal. By now, we must all be agreed on the desirability at least of building a disciplined, fair, just, humane and self-reliant society in Nigeria. While we recognise that this type of society which we all desire cannot be brought about during one or even two terms of office, we should, however, strive to hasten its realisation.

Therefore, side by side with your election manifestoes, we expect all of you to give serious thought to devising realistic programmes which will hasten the achievement of that society.

The problem lies in distinguishing in the short and medium term what is possible from what is desirable and the administration of a balanced dosage and mix for the nation. That to my mind is the beginning of good government.

Good government stems from good leadership. All of you who have been nominated by your parties to contest various elective political offices or elected to fill party posts are potential leaders in government. You, therefore, have the collective responsibility to decide on the ground rules for the great contests ahead. Some of these rules are obvious and readily come to mind.

It must be realised by all that leadership entails the ability and willingness to lead and be in front and not to be pushed from behind. It is up to you the leaders to set the standard, level, and tone of the political behaviour and utterances of your followers to ensure clean and fair debate in the coming elections. This you can best do by setting the examples yourselves and being prepared to restrain your followers from any excesses in speech or behaviour.

The political leadership must also give the lead in ensuring honesty and discouraging political fraud at the party level. You must ensure that your parties are capable of self-criticism and self-correction. For instance, it would not speak well of any party which knowingly allows the nomination of a candidate to be forwarded to the Federal Electoral Commission for screening while fully aware that such a candidate does not stand a chance of passing the standard rules of the FEDECO for such purposes. Ultimately, it is in the interest of the parties themselves to see a high tone of behaviour in public office by establishing minimum standards for their members. It is, therefore, incumbent upon all the political leaders to restrain their followers and exhort them to operate within the bounds of the law.

It is hardly necessary at this stage of the implementation of our political programme to reiterate once more the commitment of the Federal Military Government to restore the administration of this country to an elected government by October next year. In this endeavour, let me say that the Federal Military Government does not have any interest, as a government, to ensure that any political leader or party succeed us. Our only interest is to ensure that whoever gets elected next year builds upon rather than undermine the basis for our unity, stability and progress.

In the meantime, however, we have every intention of running a strong and purposeful government until the handover date. We shall particularly discharge vigorously our responsibilities for law and order. In this regard, let me clearly say that you and your party colleagues who have been elected to lead your parties, have as much responsibilities towards safeguarding the national interest at all times as those of us at present in government. It is, therefore, in the interest of your parties and in the overall interest of peace and stability of this nation for the political leadership to realise and accept the full consequences of the responsibilities you have taken on.

Already, some individuals have publicly expressed concern regarding whether the coming elections will be held in a free and fair manner. This is regrettable. The responsible and constructive course of action we expect is for anybody with genuine grounds to suspect possible electoral malpractices to report such fears to the Federal Electoral Commission.

We are satisfied that all possible measures to ensure smooth elections next year are being taken.

In addition, if necessary, the Federal Military Government is fully equipped to deal with any reported actual or possible plans or acts to disrupt the coming elections. We are also open to constructive suggestions in having free and fair election. What we are not prepared to tolerate is for any individual or group of persons to hold the FEDECO to ransom by crying wolf now so that they can say "I told you so" later.

I must hasten to say however, that we are satisfied with the peaceful way in which the political parties have so far conducted themselves. The spirit of good humour and sportsmanship combined with dedicated hard work which went into your various conventions and congresses augurs well for healthy political rivalry and smooth transition without bitterness or rancour. For this achievement so far, you deserve our congratulations. And I hope that when the elections come and after you have put in your best, you will be sporting enough to accept the verdict of the electorate gracefully and with decorum. I wish you all a good competition, the best of luck, happiness and success in the New Year.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note does not form part of the above Decree but is intended to explain its purpose)

Following the promulgation of the Constitution of the Federal Republic of Nigeria in September 1978, a number of Decrees which could have been obstructive of free political activities were repealed. This Decree completes the exercise by repealing certain Decrees made since January 1966 up to date which might not be in consonance with the new Constitution.

The Robbery and Firearms (Special Provisions) Decree 1970, the Counterfeit Currency (Special Provisions) Decree 1974 and the Regulated and Other Professions (Miscellaneous Provisions) Decree 1978 have however been suitably modified to bring them into line with the Constitution.
